WECAMP
MORE THAN JUST A CAMPSITE

The emblematic village of Cadaqués, the birthplace of great artists like Salvador Dalí, is the new destination for wecamp. Nestled between the sea and mountains of this former fishing village, wecamp Cadaqués is located in an enclave that invites you to explore its pristine beaches and vibrant trails. Among its endless natural corners, the cove of Portlligat has been chosen as wecamp's location. The new campsite aims to emphasize the connection with nature, offering a vacation atmosphere of relaxation and rest.

wecamp Cadaqués promotes a clear predominance of nature, with a cohesive use of noble materials to create a relaxed and natural environment. It maintains the aesthetics of Cadaqués, featuring characteristic white buildings with elements of wood and ceramics.

Through spacious, bright, and functional finishes highlighting noble materials and artisanal details, the interior design project led by Sandra Tarruella's studio has managed to give the new campsite a personality with clear architectural and aesthetic references to the 1960s. This period was characterized by designs that emphasized simplicity and austerity, with abundant use of natural materials like ceramic tiles and slate walls.

THE AUTHENTIC AESTHETIC OF THE COSTA BRAVA

wecamp represents the 1960s style of the Costa Brava with its white facades and red roofs. It's a place where simplicity harmonizes with design and comfort. The accommodations include apartments, glamping tents, tiny homes, and exclusive pitches for motorhomes, all ensuring the comfort of a hotel with queen-size beds, amenities, sheets, and towels.

wecamp offers accommodations that blend minimally with the environment, respecting nature and the community while providing the comfort standards of a hotel.

A new destination whose versatile proposal of accommodations gives prominence to the outdoor environment without losing attention to the interior details, which emphasize the local tradition of Alt Empordà.

Versatile and open spaces with a minimalist style, designed for interaction between people. Noble materials of Mediterranean style, such as ceramics, terracotta tiles, and warm-toned wood, reflecting the original style of Alt Empordà.

Moreover, as an added value to its vacation offering, wecamp Cadaqués provides numerous modern architecture common areas, creating a contemporary and functional atmosphere.

EL TRASTOCAT

The new restaurant at wecamp Cadaqués is located in the heart of the resort, next to the pool and a terrace with breathtaking views.

El Trastocat offers a casual, summery, and high-quality menu, featuring Andalusian-style calamari with kimchi mayonnaise, seasonal tomato salad with stracciatella, Red Prawn Ravioli, 30-day-aged Galician Blonde Ribeye, and their signature artisanal pizzas like truffle, egg, and fontina. It also offers a take-away service to enjoy the gastronomic offerings in your own accommodation.

The restaurant is decorated mainly with wooden and natural materials, like rattan, with a touch of vibrant color in the furnishings and distinctive lighting, including iconic design pieces. The terrace, surrounded by olive trees and designed as a seamless continuation of the interior in both materials and furnishings, provides a perfect outdoor space for snacks, cocktails, and summer dinners. Its subtle and ambient lighting, accompanied by live music in late summer evenings, has turned El Trastocat into the hot spot of Cadaqués.
